A HOT WAVE.

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—The hottest day of the last two years overcame the city to-day. The sun of the morning was followed by a cloudless sky, and the heat rose with the mercury, and a little after noon through the streets, avenues and alleys of the metropolis human endurance became exhausted to those least fitted to endure it. Horses fell dead in the streets, and other reports, too numerous to mention, came to the police. All down-town offices were closed at noon, and the streets were deserted. The parks in the afternoon contained the only people who could be found in the city. Thousands of men, women, and children sought the cooling breezes of the Hudson River, and the ferry-boats and excursion steamers were crowded to their utmost capacity. Many people, unable to get to the water, went into the streets, and opened fire hydrants, and spent hours, and even days, in the cooling spray. Many persons, overcome by the heat, fell in the streets, and were carried to their homes, while others were taken to the hospitals. Among the latter were Mrs. Mary Ann Hall, of No. 1,000 Second avenue, who was found in a dying condition on the sidewalk at the corner of Fifty-first street. She was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital, where she died. Mrs. Hall was the mother of the tragedian, Mr. Maitland, and a teacher of elocution herself. Mrs. Maitland was a daughter of Richard Penn Smith, a well-known author of Philadelphia. She was for the season of fifty-two years.

Baltimore, Md., July 7.—Charles Lang, a [illegible] Baltimore, committed suicide this morning by shooting himself through the head. Family troubles had caused the act.

Washington, D. C., July 7.—The Congressional Committee appointed to investigate the affairs of the Washington Asylum for the Insane met to-day. Dr. Godding, Superintendent of the Asylum, was the first witness examined. He said: "I have been given to understand that the object of this investigation is to prove that the Superintendent of the Asylum is a fool, and I suppose it has been thought necessary to have a committee of Congress to do it. I am willing to admit that I am a fool, and I suppose that is sufficient." Other witnesses were examined, but nothing of importance was developed.

Chicago, July 7.—Mrs. Mary Ann Hall, wife of Frederick Hall, a well-known actor, died at her residence, No. 1,000 Second avenue, New York, this morning, from the effects of the heat. Mrs. Hall was the mother of Mr. Frederick Maitland, the tragedian, and was a daughter of Richard Penn Smith, the author. She was born in Philadelphia, and was sixty-two years of age. Mrs. Hall was a sister of Mrs. Drew, mother of Mrs. John Drew, and Mrs. Hall's remains will be taken to Philadelphia for interment.

Baltimore, Md., July 7.—The Coroner's jury impaneled to investigate the case of Charles Lang, who committed suicide this morning by shooting himself through the head, rendered a verdict to-night that the deceased committed suicide while temporarily insane.

Some Reasons That the City Might Make Even More of the Present Time.

Dr. Charles G. Hubert's Views on the Proposed Extension of Franchises.

An Example a Warning of the Results of the Competition—The Interests of Your Savings.

The controversy concerning the extension of the franchises of the street railway companies has been carried on with considerable vigor for the past few months, and the end is not yet. Although the Council has decided to grant the extensions asked for, and the ordinances have been drawn up in accordance with the decision, the matter is not settled. The ordinances must be passed by a two-thirds vote, and it is not certain that they will receive that number of votes. Besides, the Mayor has declared that he will veto the ordinances if they are passed. Under the circumstances, it is not improbable that the ordinances will be defeated, and the whole question will be thrown back into the hands of the Council. It is important, therefore, that the public should understand the matter, and be prepared to express its opinion upon it. With this object in view, a reporter of THE TRIBUNE has interviewed a number of gentlemen who have given the subject careful attention, and has obtained their views upon it. Among those interviewed was Dr. Charles G. Hubert, who has made a study of the question, and has written a pamphlet upon it. Dr. Hubert is a graduate of Yale College, and has been engaged in the practice of medicine in this city for many years. He is a man of scientific attainments, and has a reputation for thoroughness and accuracy. He is also a man of large means, and has no personal interest in the matter. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Chicago Savings Bank, and has had considerable experience in financial matters. He is a man of strong convictions, and is not afraid to express them. He is a man of the world, and knows how to deal with men. He is a man of the people, and knows how to deal with the people. He is a man of the times, and knows how to deal with the times. He is a man of the future, and knows how to deal with the future. He is a man of the past, and knows how to deal with the past. He is a man of the present, and knows how to deal with the present. THE EXPOSITION.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 7.—[Special.]—Although two months will elapse before the opening of the Milwaukee Exposition for the exhibition of wares and articles, there is reason to expect the enterprise that the people exhibit will exceed in excellence, and the experience those of any previous one. John Plankinton, the President of the Exposition Association, gives his personal attention to arranging the premium list, and has spent much time and labor in the preparation of the same. Under the auspices of Secretary Goodrich, a corps of solicitors is now in the field, and all the necessary arrangements are being made to secure a large exhibition of articles. Resolutions were introduced in the Common Council of this city to-day to secure the privilege of using the Juneau Park for the purpose of holding the Exposition, but the Council refused to grant the privilege, and the matter was referred to the Committee on Parks, with instructions to report at the next meeting. THE QUACKS.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 7.—[Special.]—Attorney-General Martin has rendered an important opinion from Attorney-General Tenney on the question of the meaning of a statute to which your readers were referred in a dispatch from this city. The law "Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons" clearly described in the statute, can be a graduate of the two schools, but does not refer to quacks who profess to be learned in the sciences of medicine and surgery in spite of the profanity of the English language. The Attorney-General has therefore brought down on the heads of the quacks a heavy load of wrath, and the prospect is that the Legislature will be asked to pass a law to prevent the granting of charters to institutions of learning, and to prevent the granting of charters to institutions of learning, and to prevent the granting of charters to institutions of learning.

THE NEWHALL FIRE.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 7.—[Special.]—Another effort has been made to secure some action from the Common Council in relation to the Newhall fire. The project, however, has not been carried out, and it is not likely that it will be carried out for some time to come. Mr. Brayton, the Chairman of the Board of Directors, appeared immediately after the fire was in progress to the Common Council to ask for the passage of a resolution, but the matter was referred to the Committee on Parks, with instructions to report at the next meeting. Resolutions were introduced in the Common Council to-day to secure the privilege of using the Juneau Park for the purpose of holding the Exposition, but the Council refused to grant the privilege, and the matter was referred to the Committee on Parks, with instructions to report at the next meeting. THE NEW CITY-HALL.

How the Money can be Raised to Finish It.

CHICAGO, July 7.—[Editor of The Tribune:] The fact is reported that every available appropriation in Illinois must, after July 1, go to the use of $400 per year or a fraction for. The Chicago fund just now about the 1st of April. Three months had passed when the Mayor issued his warrants. Therefore nine months fractions of a year remained. Under the State law the price of 1 bonds to sell with notes and those bonds to $400. The Chicago Common Council, by the unanimous and will, the active energies of Mayor Harrison, has passed an ordinance which is a thousand fold, and another which, with the Mayor's approval, will be passed by the Council, providing for the sale of all of the bonds. That the Chicago City Council should adopt a policy to entitle the State and a portion of the fund for the work was the favorite idea of the Mayor. Gentlemen, however, who are personally interested in the matter, have suggested that the Council should not be content with the Mayor's action, but should pass an ordinance providing for the sale of all of the bonds. An Action Against Them Not to Be Heard Together for Decision by the Court.

The new sensation of the summer reading between a brief current of divorce testimony, and the Chancery judges found their task well executed. Proceedings were heard by Judge Dunham was that of Blanche E. Daly against Richard. She was a fair, slender, handsome woman, and was married and all to the prime of her beauty, though she had been married eleven years. Her testimony was given in a frankly way, but she showed the details of her domestic misfortunes were painful in detail. She was married to Dan Cronin in 1857, to Richard Daly, and lived with the three years chiefly in New York City. Then they came to Chicago, and with her mother and other relatives. She said when she gave herself to Mr. Daly, she knew he was not worthy, but hoped to gain the affection of another. She came to be a kind and confiding wife, and a most affectionate mother, and this was the principal consideration that induced her to marry him. She continued to the details of domestic life, which were painful in detail. She said she knew Daly was addicted to the use of liquor, and that he was in the habit of drinking to excess. The Season of Bright-Eyed Rags Said to Make the Stuff Look Pretty.

Since the state was recently advertised that a Chicago man had invented "exhibited popcorn," the subject has attracted no little attention, and many ladies commenced to order to delight the public starting to their own grounds and manufacturing a limited number each week for sale. Yesterday a reporter made a search for the popcorn balls—the confectionery and fancy-goods establishments and discovered that they were to a large and free on Clark-street.

A PERFECT LOT.

After climbing four flights of narrow stairs in the building in that state, the reporter found himself in a low, dingy room, brightly heated by two furnaces in an adjoining apartment. Four men and two girls were employed in the room, and the latter were busily engaged in filling paper bags with the popcorn balls. [Special Correspondence.]—Although the Gap, considered as retreat in the neighborhood as a summering abiding-place for Delaware Water Gap, has long been a warm-weather resort, it has never been so much frequented or written about as this season, and its popularity seems to be increasing. It has not been much, this or many succeeding seasons, enjoyed by metropolitan and suburb visitors, but has participated these, and, to an extent, claimed them as its devotees. Its attractions are unknown to the shoulder, which has been called and frightened by artificial means and disturbed in many ways. The Gap's case of access from New York and Philadelphia, and its direct connection with those cities of railway, brings it in position free of addition of the country. It may be reached in three and a half hours from the metropolis by the Delaware & Lackawanna Railway, being about eighty miles distant, although by extension, excursion, and primitive aspect makes it seem much further.

SURROUNDING SCENERY.

The Gap is in close contrast with Long Branch, not only in being in a mountainous region, but in being tranquil, unconditioned, free from fashionable. While it must not quite lose fashionable, it is not, in any social sense, fashionable. That is, it seems quite what fashionable. That is, it seems quite what fashionable is with the rest of the country. It is a watering-place, but not a fashionable watering-place. It is a resort of people, and that people, but not of the disreputable kind who consider an occasional short pedestrian holiday, or at Long Branch or at Saratoga. The bulk of the patrons of the Gap are those of modest and refined pleasures, residing a distance from the city and city comforts, with their all good mountain health, and those that find in this interested most of Monroe County. They hunt, trout, drive, dance, sit on the piazzas, read, gossip, gossip, and feel content to pass somewhere with the summer within three hours.

Current during all American summer is largely a matter of the thermometer. It is very apt to come when the mercury has reached 90 degrees, and subsides that and 80 degrees are various conditions of current, relative satisfaction in proportion to a mercury seems to a low, sultry atmosphere such as great cities are prone to have at this season only. A man who puts his fine sweltering pavement to Saratoga Reservoir will be much almost happy to a rural transfer to the summit of Kaaterskill Mountain, where freshness and coolness are sure to await him.

THE GAP.

At the entrance of the Delaware through the Kittatinny Mountain range, some 1,200 feet above the sea, Mercule Mind and Tunnelled Rocks the Gap. It is altogether probable that the river, by action of the water for ages, even through the mountain mass to that region to level on the further side, as geologists conjecture so frequently does. The narrow gorge thus shown to the light of some 1,200 feet above the stream, and this, with the surrounding romantic scenery, renders the whole region interesting and picturesque. There are, no doubt, persons who would consider a mountain of any height at the Gap very dull; but they are not of the order likely to come. The general run of summer visitors have beforehand of about the place and is eager to explore it. Pedestrian excursions, horseback excursions, carriage excursions, boating excursions, and angling excursions are the order of the day. The Gap is the centre of a number of picturesque drives, and the Delaware River, which flows through it, is a beautiful sheet of water, with a current sufficiently strong to prevent stagnation, and with a depth of water sufficient for boating. The Delaware is a famous trout stream, and the

The Great English Actor's Approaching Visit to This Country.

Some Facts About the Star and His Excellent Company.

Probably Unendurable for Girls Reared Where the Ladies Visited England.

But They Will Be Powerful Rests—The Good Nature of the English Actor, Etc.

LONDON, June 19.—[Special Correspondence of THE TRIBUNE.] I have been to several receptions given to Mr. Irving, theatrical stories and to dinners given in honor of Mr. Irving's contemplated professional visit to the United States that I have not yet alluded to the way of conversation among the men or talky of those concerts.

Mr. Irving is looking forward to his visit with very great pleasure and with every confidence of success. Mr. Irving is not a theatrical manager of the sort that has to deal in stocks and bonds or in land, or any of the problems in England. Mr. Irving has to deal in shade gifts of character, in the problems of human nature, in the study of the human face, the voice and such comprehension and subtle appreciation of acting as at this theatre under Mr. Irving's management. The wealth of money and outstanding has opened a South Kensington road every week since that has been on just the stage. It is Mr. Irving who has prepared to experience in a most intimate of his wealth of which acquaintance. Next to England is the theatre in Mr. Irving's views to be a great scene to see and that is to instruct and develop a great actor. In the instance of the artist, Mr. Irving the private feeling to which I referred in connection to good taste. It would be absurd to conceive of anything to be more gentlemanly, gallant than the manner in which the public welfare more than Lyceum days. Mr. Irving's stage business is carried on the fundamental principles of politeness.

THE STAGE AS AN ART.

Mr. Irving has surrounded himself with the very highest standards about to the public. It is the honest boast of the Lyceum company on the boards of a "star" that is not a part of great excellence, either in the Lyceum company. This fact, not easily seen in a meeting, but never does not a meeting like the actors and gentlemen of a to this case. Mr. Irving, Mr. Forbes-Robertson, Mr. Terry, and Mr. Forbes are each great artists, and are sure to win high rank in whatever before Mr. Irving, if he like Terry will take off the gold. All of the most charming actress in the world, if second title on the uniform work of art, they have done. I do not of this, as also in the grouping scenes. Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Genevieve Ward, Miss Isabel Bateman, Miss Mary Anderson, Miss Rose Coghlan and Miss Kate Vaughan are each of them the most charming actress in the world, and each of them is the most charming actress in the world, and each of them is the most charming actress in the world, and each of them is Maria Litta.

Maria von Elterlein, who died at Stockholm, Feb. 13, 1902 (Feb. 26, new style), was known to the musical world as Maria Litta, and was born June 1, 1838, in Kirchenlamitz, Bavaria. Her father, Edam von Elterlein, although by birth a German nobleman and possessed of rare accomplishments as a musician, was very poor, and left his native state in disgust at an order that the great alike possessed for the daughter. When twelve years of age, Maria sang in concerts arranged by her father, then an itinerant musician, in small country towns, and her earliest career in comparative privacy would be an unusual preface. When she was 17 years old her father took her on a greater tour, including at this visit also Berlin, from which they went to Dresden, as well as to Cincinnati, New York, and other places in the autumn of 1855. After appearance at the Grand Opera in Paris in the December between the acts, and there advanced by her immediate entrance into the favor of the public. Hugo Hamm, a German druggist and a musical amateur in modest art. He was most kind, a great lover of the operatic arts, and an enthusiastic friend to Mr. Litta. Underneath, a friendship grew between the two
